The Driftwood Players of Edmonds are currently celebrating their 50th Anniversary Season, and part of those festivities includes hosting Kaleidoscope 2009, the biennial one-act play festival of the Washington State Community Theatre Association. From March 6th through March 8th representatives from community theatres across our state will be gathering at the Wade James Theatre to meet, exchange ideas, attend workshops, and strut their theatrical prowess in Washington State's one-act play competition. Driftwood last hosted Kaleidoscope in 2001.

This year's festival promises a variety of entertaining performances which can include musicals, classics, original works, theatre for young audiences, and the avante garde. Three sessions of performances are currently planned for the weekend (with room to expand). During each session, two to three different theatre companies will perform their competition entry and receive a critique from experienced adjudicators. As all performances are open to the public, the audience will have the rare opportunity to attend the adjudication, compare their own observations with those of the adjudicators, and learn from the feedback given to each individual company.

Kaleidoscope precedes the Regional Festival in Couer d'Alene, ID April 17 - 19; the national AACTFest '09 in Tacoma, WA June 23 - 27; and international festivals in ... cont page 2
